

Quiz: Flask Templates

Reset Quiz

By Brandon Gigous

Question 1 of 4

```
from flask import Flask
app = Flask('taco')
@app.route('/cosmic-taco')
def cosmic():
    return render_template('cosmic.html')
```

With this code, Flask will look for a template located at:

taco/templates/cosmic.html

cosmic/templates/taco.html

taco/cosmic.html

taco/templates/cosmic-taco.html

You're a brainiac!

Yes! The package name is "taco" and the by default, Flask looks for template files in `<package name>/templates/`. The template to render is `cosmic.html`

Quiz: Flask Templates

Reset Quiz

By Brandon Gigous

Question 2 of 4

Match the Jinja syntax with what it represents.

`{()}`

variable placeholder

`{%%}`

control structure

`{##}`

comment

`|`

filter

You're on fire!

Quiz: Flask Templates

Reset Quiz

By Brandon Gigous

Question 3 of 4

```
from flask import Flask, render_template app = Flask(__name__)

@app.route('/page3')
def page3():
    return render_template('page3.html')
```

```
{# page1.html #}
{% block quiz %}
Tomato {% endblock %}
```

```
{# page2.html #}
{% extends "page1.html" %}
{% block quiz %}
Sandwich
{{ super() }} {% endblock %}
```

```
{# page3.html #}
{% extends "page2.html" %}
{% block quantity %}
{% endblock %}
```

Navigating to `localhost:5000/page3` :

will show "Sandwich Tomato"

will show "Tomato Sandwich"

will not show anything

will show "Tomato"

will show "Sandwich"

You're a champ!

Correctamundo! Even though `page3.html` doesn't have a block called `quiz` explicitly mentioned, it still inherits it from the `page2.html` template, which gets part of its `quiz` block value from `page1.html`

Quiz: Flask Templates

Reset Quiz

By Brandon Gigous

Question 4 of 4

Once Flask-Bootstrap is installed and initialized, Bootstrap can be applied to an existing template by adding `{% extend "bootstrap/base.html" %}` to the top of the template.

True

False

You're invincible!

Bingo!

Previous Question

Finish Quiz